

Providenciales, May 11 2010 – It was two days of fun this weekend at the Windvibes 2010 Kiteboarding Tournament held in Long Bay.

26 kiteboarders participated, and over a hundred spectators came out for the bash. There was tug-of-war, wakeboarding, tubing, and a little kiteboarding.

On Saturday, which was the preliminary event, all the races were held successfully with just enough wind. However on Sunday, the main event, the wind didn't cooperate. It didn't blow at all, and none of the kiteboarding events were able to be held.

Due to this the finals have been rescheduled for next Sunday the 16th of May. Long Bay is once again the location. Kick off is at 10am.

Shade tents will be on the beach for spectators. Cold drinks and BBQ food will be available throughout the day, plus a live DJ will be playing. This is perfect for a family beach day!

The wind forecast looks great, and the wind is going to be nuk'in! Come check out the vibes!
